From Eliyahu:

Shalom friends,

"The squeaky wheel gets the grease" - or so I've been told. This saying makes a few assumptions. First, there are other wheels competing for that grease. In other words, there always seems to be a lot of other people who want exactly what you want, whether grease or whatever. Second, if you want to get the proverbial grease then you need to squeak louder than the rest. Third, you must keep squeaking, louder and louder, until you have become so overwhelmingly annoying that someone will give you the grease just to shut you up!

Some people call this getting the grease, others call it nagging. Pretty much everybody calls it annoying as all getout - which, of course, is why it works!

Yes, nagging works. I hate that it works, but it does work, which is why we live in a world full of nagging voices. This is one aspect of the modern world of hi-tech communication that I find distinctly unpleasant. On the internet it is called "push technology" - a very appropriate term since it is highly pushy.

Push technology works through email, cell phone apps, so-called "cookies" as you browse the web and through sophisticated machine-learning algorithms that track everything you do on the internet, and increasingly even off the internet in the real world. Multi-billion dollar companies are listening to you in your bedroom via your TV or other equipment, whether you turned it on or not. They listen in on your phone conversations and even the dialog in the room. All of this invasion of your privacy is happening because nagging has become monetized as "targeted advertising." Huge money is being paid by advertisers to be there in any given moment when you might seem to suggest any remote vulnerability to their sales message, when they target you, and squeak louder in your ear than all the rest. If you don't respond in that moment, and maybe even if you do, once they have targeted you their nagging message will follow you everywhere you go, until they get your "grease." After that, of course, their nagging will only keep increasing as they keep pushing in your direction, forever.

If you thought the targeted advertising was the worst of it, guess again. There is a far more sinister side to all of this, which is truly alarming. The internet giants are not content with simply selling you something. They want much more than that. They want to control your mind. That may sound extreme, and it is, but it is also true. The reason is that they have both the need and the influence to remold the world into a place that is optimized to their liking. Since they have a global market they also have a globalist mentality with a political and social agenda to match. Don't be so naive as to think they would not use their global hi-tech platform to influence the masses, one person at a time, to conform to their thinking. This brings nagging to a whole other level - to the level of brainwashing. They are tracking you in an attempt to steer you toward the ideas they want you to think about and toward the "news" with the spin that they want you to accept. Their methods are often very subtle, but they are constantly nagging you to think like they want you to think, and it may be working far better than you could ever imagine. See the video: The Creepy Line.

Here's my question: How much of that unceasing flood of hi-tech nagging is from God? Not much, right?

Here's my next question: If it's not from God then whom is it from? ..Right. ..Are you seeing the enormity of the problem?

Yes, the devil is in control of this world and our hi-tech age is a massive force-multiplier for him. It allows him to literally hound mankind into conformity with his plans and purposes, and to inflict punishment upon any who do not go along with the crowd, in supporting his evil ends. In Biblical terms, we are talking about the "broad road" that leads to destruction.

That's a lot to resist, day in and day out. Do you feel the stress of that? Yeah, me too. It is a massive constant pressure. That is why you can't take your salvation for granted. Rather you must "work out your own salvation with fear and trembling." The narrow road must be your constant concern, if you are going to overcome the world, the flesh and the devil. To win you must "run with perseverance the race that is set before us." You must overcome to win the race, and that will take a lot of perseverance. Since the devil and the world are constantly nagging you, then you must be even more persistent in your course than they are in trying to turn you away. (Philippians 2:12b, Hebrews 12:1)

To overcome you must counter all of that nagging from the world with the truth from the Scriptures. Most of us need help with that, which is what Tsiyon is all about. Unlike the world, we are not tracking you and invading your life all the time. Generally, you get just this one newsletter from us to keep you up to date with what we are offering. After that, it is entirely up to you to use your Tsiyon resources or not. We know that since the pressure from the world is constant then your efforts at combating the river of lies with the truth must be constant also. That's why we prominently post our Tsiyon Partner Action Points near the top of each Tsiyon News. These click through to the website where each point is found. By following these each week you can systematically build up your knowledge of the truth in a few hours each week. Many have found this a hugely powerful way to help them stay on the narrow path. It does take persistence from week to week to reap these benefits, but this is left entirely up to you to utilize or not. We hope you do though, because we care how things turn out for you, and we are doing all we can to help you run the race to the finish as an overcomer.

A major offering of Tsiyon is our weekly Sabbath meetings, which you can join live online, or view the video recording on demand from the website. We are listening carefully to Messiah in the Gospels right now, as we move through them verse by verse. Again, this is persistent forward movement, as we run the race toward the finish. There is nothing like the words and example of our Messiah to empower us to overcome the world in these last days, and moving with Him through His words and actions is truly transformative!

In our Sabbath meeting tonight we will be taking in a lot that Messiah had to share about the need for overcomers to persist in their faith. This message is even more vital today than ever, as we see how this applies to the Remnant of Israel in prophecy. Join us tonight at 8 PM CST at Tsiyon.Net for our Tsiyon meeting as we consider Luke 18, and run well!

Shalom,

Eliyahu

Editor's NOTE: From the WWC website; "The World Council of Churches (WCC) is the broadest and most inclusive among the many organized expressions of the modern ecumenical movement, a movement whose goal is Christian unity. The WCC brings together churches, denominations and church fellowships in more than 110 countries and territories throughout the world, representing over 500 million Christians and including most of the world's Orthodox churches..."

Exposed: World Council of Churches Spying Against Israel

Reprint: Israel Today | February 22, 2019

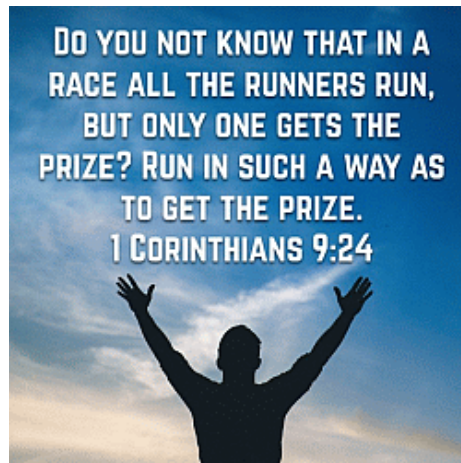

The World Council of Churches (WCC) has been caught funding spies posing as tourists to present biased and incendiary reports about Israel's "brutal and oppressive treatment" of Palestinians.

The WCC program called the Ecumenical Accompaniment Program in Palestine and Israel (EAPPI) sends foreign nationals to Samaria and Judea pretending to be tourists. Posing as Christian pilgrims visiting biblical sites around Jerusalem and Hebron, these politically-motivated activists take pictures and publish fake news reports slamming Israel's so-called "abuses" against Palestinians.

In their "news reports," these anti-Israel spies use Bible verses and theological terms "loaded with antisemitism," said Amit Barak, one of the Israelis who exposed the group. They even posted antisemitic pictures like a "Star of David bleeding on Palestinian children," he said.

Barak, who lives in the Judean mountains south of Bethlehem, kept seeing the EAPPI activists mingling outside his home. After several weeks of watching them pose as tourists, he decided to "take the gloves off" and expose their scam.

Itai Reuveni, an expert working for NGO Monitor, pointed out that these EAPPI activists being sent only to Israel and not to any other conflict zone in the world proves that "it's a political project in disguise of human rights." Reuveni's group reported that the World Council of Churches has sent 1,800 volunteers to Judea and Samria to "witness life under occupation."

Despite marketing itself as a human rights and protection program, EAPPI places significant emphasis on political advocacy before, during, and after the trip. When volunteers return to their home countries and churches, they engage in anti-Israel advocacy, such as BDS (boycott, divestment, and sanctions) campaigns and comparing Israel to apartheid South Africa and Nazi Germany.

WCC-funded activists have been working closely with Hassan Breijieh, spokesperson for the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine terror group. They also sent volunteers to the home of the Palestinian terrorist who stabbed to death Yosef Salomon, his daughter Chaya and son Elad in 2017.

According to The Jerusalem Post, the WCC has refused to comment on reports published by numerous news agencies exposing their illegal activities in Israel.
