From Eliyahu

Consider this:

Sometimes it is interesting how real events of the present world mirror Biblical events of years gone by. For example, presently at Tsiyon we are focusing on Yochanan the Immerser (John the Baptist). He had a call on his life to call his countrymen to repentance, which required him to sharply criticize the evil of the elites of his day. Of course, this was a dangerous proposition, as it always is in any generation, because the elites don't like being criticized - and they have the power to do something about it. Typically the common people resent the misdeeds of the elites, but they lack the courage to outwardly oppose them. That's why they applaud someone like Yochanan, because the people get a certain vicarious joy out of watching their hero make fools of those who are constantly burdening their lives.

This week this same scenario came into play in the case of Tucker Carlson and Fox News. For precisely the reason explained above, Tucker Carlson was and is the most popular media figure in America. Every week more Americans tuned in to Tucker, to watch him expose the dirty laundry of the elites, and to do so with facts and a ready wit, diminishing the powerful with uproarious laughter.

As the Tucker phenomenon rolled out from week to week, often exposing dirt that no one else in the captive media would dare to touch, one had the sense that, at some point, the Rubicon would be crossed and the ire of the elites would be poured out upon Tucker Carlson. That finally happened this week, as Fox apparently fired Tucker. Of course, that was not enough for them, which is why virtually every elite-controlled media voice out there is piling on anything they can distort or invent in an attempt to destroy Tucker's life as a media voice. Watching all of this, it becomes crystal clear why the head of John the Baptist ended up on a platter, in the court of the king.

Having said that, I must also say that is where the similarity between Tucker and Yochanan ends. Tucker has made no claim to a calling from God to expose the elites, and has also made millions of dollars doing so. This is not meant to criticize Tucker. I'm merely pointing out that Yochanan had no worldly incentives to do what he did. He had absolutely no interest in amassing wealth, living in the wilderness as he did, on locust and wild honey, and wearing the most undesirable of all clothing.

Yochanan had only one reason, one driving motivation. He was called by YHWH to his unique mission. He was literally brought into the world for that purpose, and fulfilling his purpose was his constant duty and focus.

Tonight on Yeshua's Narrow Way we will be considering the call of Yochanan the Immerser. What was he trying to accomplish? Why was it important? Is it still relevant to us? If so, what does it mean for us, today?
