From Eliyahu

The visitation of Yeshua divides people. Yeshua, the Son of God, was born into the world to save those who put faith in Him. However, for those who didn't or don't there is nothing left but judgment. This can be clearly seen from the history of what happened to the nation of Judea Yeshua visited in the 1st Century. Before His death Yeshua spoke to the ruling class in Jerusalem in this manner: "When he drew near, he saw the city and wept over it, saying, "If you, even you, had known today the things which belong to your peace! But now, they are hidden from your eyes."

He went on to describe the terrible end that would fall on that generation of unbelievers, and He told them why – "Because you didn't know the time of your visitation." (Luke 19:41-44)

History underscores the truthfulness of Yeshua's words. Just four decades after Yeshua began His mission Jerusalem was burned to the ground and millions of unbelievers were killed or sold into slavery because they didn't see the significance of their times in Bible prophecy. (Luke 19:41-44)

How about you? Are you seeing the significance of our times in Bible prophecy? Do you see that our generation, like that 1st Century generation, is being divided according to faith to receive either deliverance or judgment? Indeed, what are Bible-believing people looking at now to indicate the signs of the times?

One thing you can't miss today is the rapid advancement of amazing technologies. I saw that coming and have been heralding the connection of new technologies to End-Days since 2008 on my radio program and in 2016 with my "Building the Beast" video. Let's look at some current examples.

AI is rapidly penetrating the natural world. For example, Stanford's 2026 AI Index says AI-related natural-science publications reached about 80,150 in 2025, up 26% from 2024. The National Security Commission on Emerging Biotechnology said in 2025 that emerging biotechnology, coupled with artificial intelligence, will transform everything from defense to healthcare. And NASA's Artemis II mission, completed in April 2026, was officially described as a key step toward a long-term return to the Moon and future missions to Mars. So even before we consider theological questions, the sense of acceleration of technology is very real. Right here we have three areas of technology that are overlapping and growing exponentially. These are Artificial Intelligence (AI), Genetics and Space. The Bible does not directly name any of these as signs, so how could they fit into the prophetic picture of our times?

AI is the category most often tied to end-times prophecy. The obvious reading is that AI, supercomputing, digital surveillance, and digital currency could become the infrastructure behind the mark of the beast system in Revelation 13. AI itself is not the beast, and no current product is the mark, but AI and only AI can provide the last piece of the puzzle that could make Revelation 13 possible on the predicted global scale.

Let's talk about the growing scale of AI in America, this decade. Reuters reports that developers have filed plans for just over 150 gigawatts of new U.S. data-center power capacity, compared with just under 15 gigawatts of current U.S. data-center capacity, which is roughly a tenfold expansion. This is also a nationwide buildout, not just a Silicon Valley story: 24 states already have at least 1 gigawatt of data-center capacity planned or under construction. The scale is so large that JLL says the more than 35 gigawatts of data-center capacity now under construction across North America is roughly equal to the annual electricity consumption of the UK or Italy. This is just AI in America. Other countries are also building AI datacenters. AI, supercomputers, surveillance, and digital money thus pose a combined and real threat with obvious prophetic implications.

Genetics is another technology that has grown rapidly. Genetics has already reshaped farming on a massive scale: USDA says more than 90% of U.S. corn, soybeans, cotton, canola, and sugarbeets are now grown with genetically engineered varieties. These GMO foods now fill the aisles of our supermarkets. Twenty-five years ago, generating the first draft human genome cost about $300 million worldwide; today, genetics has moved so fast that the FDA now maintains a standing list of approved cell and gene therapy products, with new first-of-their-kind treatments still being approved in late 2025. While there have been gains from genetics in healthcare, there have also been some alarming concerns. There is evidence that mRNA COVID-19 vaccines caused some deaths, with exact numbers being disputed. These are known mainly through adverse reactions to the gene-changes manifested as vaccine-associated myocarditis.

There is a powerful push from some very influential people to take genetics far beyond healthcare. I'm talking about transhumanism. In simple terms, changing mankind into super-beings who are post-human. That is, something beyond human ... gods maybe? The core intellectual figures behind this include people like Nick Bostrom, Ray Kurzweil, and Max More. Bostrom co-founded the old World Transhumanist Association, later Humanity+, and became globally influential through Oxford's Future of Humanity Institute and his work on human enhancement and superintelligence. Kurzweil is the best-known public evangelist for the merger of humans and machines; Humanity+ lists him as an advisor, and his books explicitly frame the future as one in which humans "transcend biology."

Max More is one of the movement's key early philosophers in transhumanist thought. You may never have heard of any of these men, but these people move in the matrix of the big money, with loads of support from the Big Tech community that creates all these wonders. This is not just a sci-fi idea. Elon Musk's chip in your head will be just the beginning.

For good reasons there are real concerns about a technology that changes humans into something else. Those who talk Biblically about genetics usually connect it to Genesis 1:27 (the image of God), Genesis 6:1–4, and Matthew 24:37 (“as in the days of Noah”). The concern is not ordinary medicine as such, but transhumanism: the idea of redesigning humanity, surpassing the limits of God's creation, or blurring what it means to be human through genetic engineering, enhancement, and human-machine convergence. Transhumanism is another form of humanity trying to “be as gods” – and progress toward that goal is happening fast.

Space – “Though they dig into Sheol, from there my hand will take them; and though they climb up to heaven, from there I will bring them down.” (Amos 9:2)

Maybe this verse is a metaphor, but maybe it is more than a metaphor. Maybe it is a prediction of fact. If a prediction of fact, it must be talking about space travel in the Last Days. Here are some highlights about Space in my lifetime. When I was about 8 years old everyone was talking about Sputnik, which was the very first satellite launched into Space by mankind, specifically by the Russians. That was the start of the Space Race. There were a lot more firsts in Space over the next decade or so, all leading up to the big one – man on the Moon.

On July 20, 1969, the Apollo 11 mission brought the first human beings to the Moon, as Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin landed the lunar module Eagle on its surface while Michael Collins remained in orbit above. Armstrong became the first man to step onto the Moon, and the event was watched by a massive global TV audience, including me, as one of the greatest technological and symbolic achievements in human history.

The last man to walk on the Moon was Eugene “Gene” Cernan, commander of Apollo 17, NASA’s final lunar landing mission. On December 14, 1972, he left the lunar surface after Harrison Schmitt, making Cernan the most recent human being to have stood and walked there as of today. I’m not sure, but I think when he did that nobody was watching on TV. At least, I wasn’t.

A lot has happened in Space since then. Right now roughly 18,500 satellites, or roughly 33,200 total tracked man-made objects, are in orbit around the Earth. It has been 54 years since a man has been on the Moon, but that is about to change, since a new Space Race is underway.

China is pursuing the Moon in two parallel ways: a steady robotic program and a longer-term human presence strategy. Its Chang’e program has already achieved major milestones, including the Chang’e-6 far-side sample-return mission in 2024. Official Chinese statements say the country is targeting a crewed lunar landing by 2030. China’s larger goal is to help build a permanent lunar foothold, centered on the Moon’s south pole, through the International Lunar Research Station project it is leading with partners. Chinese and partner statements describe that effort as a plan for a permanent lunar outpost in the 2030s.

The United States is pursuing the Moon through NASA’s Artemis program, whose stated goal is to return humans to the lunar surface, establish a sustained presence on and around the Moon by the 2030s, and use those missions to prepare for eventual crewed journeys to Mars. That effort includes not just astronaut flights but a larger lunar system: the Gateway station in lunar orbit, commercial robotic deliveries through CLPS, new lunar landers and spacesuits, and a focus on the Moon’s South Polar Region for future surface work. The program is already moving: NASA says Artemis II launched on April 1, 2026, sending four astronauts on the first crewed lunar flyby in more than 50 years as a major step toward the later missions.

So yeah, mankind is setting up a “sustained presence” in the heavens. That might not end well – “though they climb up to heaven, from there I will bring them down.” (Amos 9:2)

Another wrinkle on Space is the James Webb telescope that is peering the farthest into Space that has ever been seen, only to present reality that smashes the evolutionary model of cosmology that the scientific community has been promoting since Einstein. In short, God made the universe, and that is exactly what it looks like through the James Webb telescope.

Another wrinkle yet, on Space, believe it or not, has to do with Space Aliens. Yes, famous and well connected people in military and government are indicating that “disclosure” is near. In other words, pretty soon we will be officially told that Space Aliens are visiting our world in vehicles akin to Flying Saucers, UFOs, UAPs, whatever, and much of our amazing technology actually has come from them. Soon after that, we will “learn” that they have been coming here to enlighten our species, and of course, they will be onboard with all of the key atheist items including evolution, in which we will all be flattered that we have achieved the highest level of consciousness yet among humans, and that their mission will be to raise us to post-human status in which we will become as gods. A crazy number of people will immediately sign on for the biggest deception ever up to that time. (See Daniel 8, Matthew 24:24 and 2 Thessalonians 2:11)

One more current event I would like to bring in.

A lot of Bible-believing people have a strong feeling that the current Iran war has prophetic significance for the Last Days timetable. Ezekiel 38-39 is the strongest and most common Iran connection among Bible-believers, though interpreted in different ways. Psalm 83 has also risen in the sight of some, who see this Iran war as the end phase of the Psalm 83 war. This view appears to be catching up with what I have been teaching since around 2008. Namely, that the end of the Psalm 83 war would bring in the time of peace that will lead to the eventual attack of Gog, as prophesied in Ezekiel 38 + 39. In other words, I see the Iran war as the closing phase of the Psalm 83 war that will bring in a time of peace in Israel and the entire region. However, my teaching goes beyond that, based upon Ezekiel 36-39, that the believing scattered remnant of the tribes of Israel will be returned to the Land during the upcoming time of peace just ahead. This puts us closer than ever to events of the Great Tribulation in the final generation.

Changes for the New Hebrew Year at Tsiyon:

This is our third decade of broadcasting the Tsiyon message, and we are still pressing forward to our goal. For the New Year we are building up our Tsiyon Road radio station.

We have recently introduced new programming on the station and will be bringing more. One new radio feature is: Did the Christian Church Teach You This? Hosted by Brother Benyimin. This insightful program is focused on helping people from a traditional Christian background to make the paradigm shift that unifies all of the Scriptures in a big picture of clarity and greater understanding. Soon we will have a new offering from Sister Shelia, as she reads through Announcing Judgment Day, my book on Revelation. This is essentially an audiobook that allows you to read the book without reading the book. Why would you want to do that? This way you can take this in through listening, even when doing other things. In this busy world that might bless some folks.

One more highlight – we are moving Abby’s monthly program to Tsiyon Road Radio as a flagship broadcast to reach many more female listeners. We think Abby’s discussion program with other sisters in the faith has a lot of potential to grow the station, so we are excited about the potential of this move. Check our radio schedule on Tsiyon.Org and tune in, you’ll love it.

As demonstrated above, things are moving fast on the prophetic timetable and we need to organize to get out of the nations in time. We must prepare ourselves for what’s ahead. In that sense, we are much like the 2nd generation of Israel standing on the border of the Land, contemplating going in. On that occasion Moses had a lot to say to them, and to us. That’s why I’m bringing back a monthly Tsiyon Academy presentation featuring the book of Deuteronomy. It will start on our next Sabbath a week from now.

Finally, we invite you tonight to Messiah’s Mighty Men with Brother Michael as your host. He will be sharing with us about Biblical organization among the early believers and why that must be re-established among the remnant. Tune in tonight at 8 PM Central at Tsiyon.Net and other popular video streaming platforms for that, because there is a lot there to learn.

In His Name, Eliyahu
